ABOUT PAOLO RINALDI

Paolo has proven to be a highly valuable asset in the complex project we worked on for a multinational company in the engineering and energy infrastructure services sector. He demonstrated excellent managerial and organizational skills, handling with precision the preparation, updating, and consolidation of progress documents and client reports, always meeting deadlines and required standards.

Alongside his technical competencies, Paolo brings distinctive relational qualities: an open, curious, and consistently collaborative approach that allows him to navigate multicultural and structured environments with ease.

I particularly appreciated his ability to clearly identify project risks and opportunities, proactively proposing solutions, as well as the natural confidence with which he engages with different stakeholders.

It is also worth highlighting his strong command of Excel and his ability to analyze complex files, effectively synthesizing qualitative and quantitative data into concise and accurate reports.

On a personal level, Paolo is a positive and reliable presence: he brings energy, balance, and a strong sense of responsibility, making a tangible contribution to the team's wellbeing even in the most challenging moments. He is someone who is truly pleasant to work with and whom you can count on.
